NASDAQ Gives Dynatronics a Third Three-Month Extension for Minimum Bid Price Compliance

Salt Lake City, Utah (March 31, 2009) – Dynatronics Corporation (NASDAQ: DYNT) today announced that NASDAQ has filed a third grace period extension with the SEC, giving the company until approximately September 27, 2009, to comply with NASDAQ's $1 per share minimum bid rule.

"We are pleased that NASDAQ has again extended the timeframe for compliance," stated Kelvyn H. Cullimore Jr., chairman and president of Dynatronics. "This will allow us time to announce our year-end results, which are expected to show significant improvement over the prior year."

Dynatronics recently reported a profit for the quarter ended December 31, 2008, showing substantially improved results for that period. The company also announced it had retained Vici Capital to assist in seeking ways to improve revenues and minimize expenses. Partly as a result of that process, the company has taken steps to reduce annual expenses by approximately $1,000,000. Additional savings are expected to be achieved in subsequent months from this effort.

"In the quarter ending June 30, 2009, we plan to introduce a new, high-margin product to the physical medicine market," Cullimore added. "The combination of new products, reduced expenses and improved revenues is expected to lead to significantly improved operating results and generate sustainable earnings improvements for the company."

Dynatronics manufactures, markets and distributes advanced-technology medical devices, orthopedic soft goods and supplies, treatment tables and rehabilitation equipment for the physical therapy, sports medicine, chiropractic, podiatry, plastic surgery, dermatology and other related medical, cosmetic and aesthetic markets.
